

Cheering Crowds Welcome Nixon To Allentown

RESPIRE—Vice President Richard Nixon (arrow) enters the Americus Hotel in Allentown last night where he was able to get some rest before his speech at Muhlenberg College Hamilton Street at that point in the vice president's visit was jammed solid with well-wishers.

BOUQUET FOR PAT—Nine-year-old Frances Starr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Starr, Bethlehem, R. 4, presenting Mrs. Richard M. Nixon with a bouquet of red roses on her arrival at the A-B-E Airport

NEW MEMBER—Vice President Richard Nixon picked up a life membership in the North End Republican Club of Allentown during his visit. As the Republican candidate's cavalcade passed the club at 8th and Tighman Streets, it slowed briefly so Charles T. Remmel, past president, and a member of the Call-Chronicle Newspapers stereotype department, left, could make the presentation.

PACKED HOUSE—Richard M. Nixon smiles approval at the reception given him at Muhlenberg Memorial Hall, particularly on the part of the Nixon Girls. In background are massed rows of spectators who turned out to hear the Republican candidate for President.

GREETINGS—The Lehigh Valley turned out in droves to greet Vice President Nixon yesterday and this was his first view of the local area turnout. Picture was taken at the A-B-E Airport with the Republican presidential candidate greeting the greeters and vice versa.

CIRCLING THE FIELD—Before delivering his address, Vice President Nixon toured the Muhlenberg football field in an open car. With his wife, Pat, he exchanges greetings with the chilled but loyal crowd, many of whom waited for several hours to see him at close range.

HEMMED IN—The Nixons, Pat and Dick, are surrounded by well-wishers at this point in their Allentown visit.

It was that way much of the time they were in Allentown.
